BY CHANGTON & NORMAN 127 TEAMES STREET.

MONDAY MORNING, MARCH 1, 1852

Lieut Gov, Lawrence amounce in Providence a few days ago that he was coming to Newport to make ar rangements for the nomination of locato co candidates for the General Assembly from this town, and that they would ren tainly be slected. It is hardly necessary for us to inform our Whig friends, in other parts of the State, that no reliance, whatever, is to be pluced, particularly in this respect, upon the . vain, blustering swaggering and ridiculous useertions by this man, of what he intends to do here: He is most thoroughly, understood in this community, and is entirely without the slightest influence; the is an incubus upon his own party, and the better portion of them would gladly slake him off, it they could well do it

Our State House will be older thou the pyramids of Egypt, when a locoford delegation from this town take their seats in the General Assembly; Newpart is, and ever has been, thoroughly and truly Whig, to the back-bone -and thus she will remain for a long time to come. We do not make nonly pretensions, but we are always true ut the Ballot box, and may ever be relied upon as the Gibratter of Whig principles.

If Beach Lawrence is sanguine in his assertions, let him run as a candidate from this town for the General Assembly, and thus give substantial evidence of the faith which is in him; if he will do this, we will guarantee him as handsome n defeat as , any . main was ever heated to. He is well known here, for Newport is a little nearer to New York, the place of his late residence, than most other places in the State are. Newport will send six true Whigs to the Assem bly, at the April election. Mark this.

The norm Saturday night was unusually severe, and the twind bleiv a violent gale. The steamer State of Maine did not attempt to leave here until morning; and in going out, as the Buy State was coming in the two boats came in collision, damaging each other to a considerable extent. The Bay State had injured her rudder, on the passage from New York, and conrequently was not ensity managed. The stern and wheel-house of the Bay State are stove, and the bows of the State of Maine are likewise staye; the holler of the latter was also injured. The Buy State is at anchor in the burber, and the State of Maine mar Fort Adams. The steamer Purry went to both houts, and took the Boston passengers, and left here for Fall River, about 11 of clock. The Empire State will take the place of the Bay State, for New York this evening. We have not been able to ascertain the extent of the damage to the two boats, or the full particulars of the collision; it was undoubtedly an unavoidable accident, us no hours have abler commanders, or more skilluli and experienced pilots, than these.

Since the above was in type, we learn that the collision took place about 5 o'clock, abreast of the wharf at Fort Adams; The State of Maine kept her us ual course, supposing that the Bay State would keep her own, -but the latter hoat was unable to do this, in cousequence of the accident to her rudder when off Watch Hill; both boats had stopped their engines, or the accident would have been much more serious .-The stern of the Bay State was carried y; and extensive damage was done to the State of Maine from her boiler larward to her how .- the concussion was so severe that the boiler was moved some six inches from its place.

The rudder of the Bay State was par tially repaired, so that she proceeded to Fall River ; the Bradford Durfee came down, and towed the State of Muine up, she being much more damaged than the Bay State. One of the wheel-mer of the State of Maine was thrown over the wheel and slightly injured; it is fortunate that no others were wounded GF The steamship Africa arrived at New York on Saturday, with three days later intelligence than the Atlantic brought; there is no news of importance by her, -all was quiet in Europe.

Advices from Italy speak of the ab horrence in which the French troops are regarded in Rome, and state that the Pope was disgusted beyond measure with the arrogant importinence of the French officers, and that he took no pains to conceal it. Three attempts had been made to assassinate the French goldiers, and the Prench Inspector of - Police had been sceretly stablied.

On the second day of the session if was ordered, that a committee should be appointed to state the sights of the colonice, the instances in which those rights had been violated, and the means proper to be pursued to their restoration and another committee to examine and report upon the several statutes of the English Parliament, which had been passed, affecting the Units and manufactures of the colonies. The members of these committees were chosen on the following day. Immediately afterward Congress took up, as the foundation of their proceedings, certain resolutions adopted, just before the time of their assembling, by delegates from towns in the county of Suffolk, and especially the town of Buston. . Boston, the early victim of the infliction of wrong by the mother country, the early champion of American liverty Boston, though, in this year country, the may be now surpassed by other caties; in numbers, in consucres and wealth, yet, elfe cannot be surpassed in the renown of her, early revolutionary history. She will stand acknowledges matory. One will stand acknowledged, while the world doth stand, as the ori-gin and ermanent, promoter and defendgin and ornament, promoter and defender at the rights of the colonies. The English crown trowned upon, her with soverity and indignation, it only made her stand more erect, and put on a face of greater boldness and defiance. The Parlament poured upon her all its indignations—It only, held her, up with greater illumination, and drew toward her the greater attachment and veneration of the country. Boston as she was tion of the country. Boston as she was in heart, in principle and feeling in 1774, so may she remain till ther three hills that state the remain till the three hills shall sink into the sea and be no more shall sink into the sea and be no more remembered among men.

Gentlemen, these early proceedings of the clitzens of Boston and other inhabitants of the county of Suffolk, deserve to be written where all pasterity may read them. They were carried to the representative of royalty. By the first disamenished mertyr in the cause of liberty, Joseph Warren. How fit that he will was not long afterward to tail in the defence of the liberty of his country, and io seal his love of that country with his blood, full of its spirit and its princihis blood, full of its spirit and its princi plus, should be the bearer of its remonpies, snow we discrete the strauces to the representative: of the strauces to the representative: of the strauces to the representative: of the strauces of which I have enlogy upon the state of which I have the honor to be a citizen, can exceed that which is expressed in the manimous resolution of the first American Congress of the 8th of October, 1774, in these words:-

Rached, "That this Congress approve the op-position of the people of Massachusetts Bay to the execution of the late acts of Paillament; and if the same shall be attempted to be carried into execution by force, in each case all America ough to support them in their opposition."

Contlemen, I will not believe that the ancient commonwealth of Massachusetts ancient commonweaun of anissactureries can ever depart from her true character. I think it impossible. But should slice he left to forgetfunges of herself and all that believes to her should and all that belongs to her should temporarily or permanently evray away from the paths of her ancient pairiot-ism, should she, which Heaven avert, he willing to throw off lier original and all-American manue—to disruhe herself, in the presence of the world, of all her nationality of character, there are others who would engerly such that mande, and who would show themselves capaand who would show themselves capa-ble of wearing it with grace, dignity and power. I need not say here, where those others are to be found. I am in the city in which. Washington, first took upon himself the administration of the Caparament. I am mean the such took upon hunsen the administration of the Government—I can near the spot on which all hearts and all hopes were concentrated, in 1789. I bring the whole scene, with all its deep interests, before me. I see the crowds that fill before the character is seen the learn before me. I see the crowds that fill and throng the streets, I see the len'thousand faces, anxious to look on him to whose wisdom, prudence and patriotism, the destinies of the country incommitted. I see the august form, I behave his covered and patriotically the series face of Washington; I have the his covered analysis when he observe his reverent, manner, when he rises in the presence of a countless mulrises in the presence of a confideral mustified, and, looking up with religious awa to heaven, solemnly swears, before that multipulinous assembly, and before Him that streth on the circle of the heavens, that he will support the construction of his country—so help him stitution of his country- so help him

, And I hear the shouts and acclamations that fill the air, 1 see outpouring tears of joy and hope, I see men classing each other's hands, and I hear them ing each other's hands, and I hear them exclaim, "We have at list a country; we have a Union; and in that Union is strongth. We have a Government, able to keep us together; and we have a Chief Magistrate, an object of confidence, attachment and love to us all,"

- Citizens of New York, men of this generation, is there any thing which warms your heart more than these recollections? Or can you contemplate the unparalleled growth of your city in population, and all human blessings, without feeling that the spot is hallowed and the hour consecrated, where and when your career of prosperity and hap-piness began?

But, gentlemen, my henrt would sink within me, and voice and speech would depart from me, il I were compelled to depart from me, if I were compelled to believe, that your fidelity to the constitution of the country, signal and unquishibled as it is, rould ever exceed that of the state whose soil was moistened by the bleed of the first martyrs in the cause of liberty, and whose histo-ry has been characterised from the beginning by their zealous and uniform support of the principles of Washing-

This first Congress sat from the fifth day of September, until the twenty-sixth, of October, and it then dissolved. Its whole proceedings are embraced in forty-nine pages, but these two pages contain the substance and the original form and pressure of our American liberty. Its principal papers are; no address to the people of Great Britain, written by John people of Great Drivain, written by John Jay; a memorial to the inhabitants of the British colonies, written by William Livingston; an address to the King,

There is one resolution of the Old Dickinson. Congress, adopted on the fourteenth of March 1770, which has never received so much attention as it deserves. It is in these words :-

A is in these words:

"In Congress, March 14th, 1776,

"Reiolited, That it be recommended to the several assemblies, conventions, councils, or committees of safety, inqueditely to cauge all persons be disarrated within their reducetive colonies, who are notationally disaffected to the cause of America, or who have not associated and relose to associate to defend it y carns the Daited Colonies, and the hostile of the British fleets and armice."

Extract from the infantes.
CHARLES TRONTSON, Secretary. Several of the Governors of the states, severation the Guvernots of the states, conventions, councils, or committees of salety, took immediate measures for carrying this resolution into effect. The proceedings, in consequence of it, have been preserved, however, only in a few states. The fullest returns which can be found, are believed to be from New tion of the Continental Congress, and to show our determination in joining our American brettern in detending the lives, liberties and properties of the in-labinate at the United Cotonies: We, lubitants of the United Colonies: the subscribers; do hereby solemnly engage and promise that we will, to gage and promise that we will, to the atmost of our power, at the rise of our lives and fortunes, with fairs, oppose the hostile proceedings of the British fleets and armies against the United American Colonics."

In the mountainous estate of New Hampshire, and among the highest of its mountains, then containly only a its mountains, then containing only a lew scattered settlements, was the non-ship of Salisbury. The Merrimac river, now so pleasant in seconcy and with so much richness and industry on its banks, was lifen'd roaring and fodming stream seching its way, amid immense forests on either side from the White Managins on either side from the White Mountains to the sea. - The settlers were collected and the promise of pledge proposed by the Continental Congress, of the and fortune presented to them. LYVO. In looking to this record, thus connected with the men of my own birth-place I confess I was gratified to find, who were the signers, and who were the dis-schilents. Among the former was he from whom I am immediately descended, with all his brothers, and his whole kith and kin. This is sufficient emblazoury for my arms, enough of heraldry for me. I n one of the fownships of New York, we find a long list of those who are called true Whigs, and then comes what is called the list of Torice, and on that list there was one name. Are there young men before me who wish to learn and to in that the spirit of their, ancestors, who wish to live and breather in that spirit, who desire that every pulsation of their hearts, every pulsation of their hearts, and every aspiration of their ambition shall be. American and nothing bit: American? Let their master the contents of the first Congress, and fully indue themselves with their sentiments.

The great Lord Chatham spoke of this assembly in terms which have caused my heart to thrill, and my eyes to be moistened whenever freedlect from my first rending of them to them.

this present hour "When your lordships took at the papers transmitted us from America—when you consider their decency firmness, and wisdom, you cannot but respect their couse, and wish to make it your own. For myself, I must declare and avow, that in all my reading and and avow, that in an my reading and observation, and it has been my favorite study, (I have read Thicydides, and have studied and admired the master states of the world,) that for solidity of teasoning, force of sugueity, wisdom of of uncount circumstances, so manned or body of men, can stand in preference, in the general Congress at Philadelphia.— I trust it is obvious to your lordships, that all attempts to impose servificte upon such men, to establish despotism over such a mighty continental nation, must be van must be fatal. We shall preference in must be vain, must be fatal. We shall be forced ultimately to retruct; let us

This first Congress, for the ability which it inunifiested, the principles which it proclaimed, and the characters of those who composed it, makes an illustrious chapter in our American history. Its, members, should be regarded not only individually, but as in a group; the regulation of the country in the country of the country in the country is the country of the country in the country is the country of the country they should be viewed as flying tures exhibiting young America, as it then was, and when the seeds of its pub he destiny were beginning to start juto ife, well described by our early motto The life, well described by our early motto

Non sine Dit, animosus infans."

Some of the members of this Congress have fived to my time, and thave had the honor of seeing and knowing them; and there are those in this uses mbly, doubtless, who have beheld the stately form of Washington, and looked upon the mild and intelligent face, and heard the voice of John Lay.

For myself, I laye to travel tack in imagination, to place investfin the milds of this assembly, this union of greatness and patriotism, and to contemplate, as if I had witnessed, its profound deliberations and its inasterly exhibitious, both of the rights and of the wrongs of the heaven.

I may not divell longer on this uniunting and enchanting picture. Another grand picture succeeds it, and that is, the convention which framed the con the convention which turned the constitution, the sepirited debates in the states, by the ablest men of those states, upon its adoption, and, finally, the organization of the first Congress, filled by the gray haired men, of the revolution, and yoursees and vigarous pairly in and yoursees and vigarous pairly is by the gray natice men of the revolu-tion, and younger and vigateous particles, and lovers of interty; and Washington husself in the principal chair of state; surrounded by his heads of departments, selected from those who enjoyed the greatest portion of his own, regard, and stood highest in the esteem of their coun-

Neither Xenoplan nor Thucydides, neither Saliustror Livy presents any picture of an assembly of public mentor any scene of distory, which, in its any scene of distory, which, in its or any scene of majory, which in any proper grandeur, or its large and lasting influence upon the happiness of mankind, equals this importance, indeed, did not, at the same of ordinary noment, strike the minds of ordinary men. But Burke saw it with an intuition clear as the light of heaven. Charles Fox saw it, and sugacious and deep thinking minds over all Europe beheld England, England I haw would thy destines have been altered if the advice of Catham, Burke, and Fox had beca followed !

llowed! Shall I say altered for the better Certainly not not for the better for Eng-land herself; probably she is stronger and richer, at this moment, than, it sho and prener, at the moment man had listened to the unheeded words of her great statemen. Neither nations hor individuals always forcese that, which their own interest and happiness require.

Our greatest blessings often arise from the disappointment of our most anxious hopes, and our most fervent wishes.

Our indiscretion sometimes serves us need,
When our deep plots do tail; and that should teach us.
There's a divinity that shapes our ends,
Rough bow them how we will.

Instead of subject colonies, England now beholds a mighty rival, rich, powerful, intelligent like herself. And may these countries be lorever friendly rivals. May menigent use nersen. And may need countries be lorger friendly rivals. May their power and greatness, sustaining themselves, be always directed to the promotion of the peace, the prosperity, the enlightenment and the liberty of markind; and if it be their violed destiny in the course of human events, that they shall be called upon, in the cause of humanity; and in the cause of freedom, to stand against a world in arms, they are of a race, and of a blood to meet that crisis without shrinking from danger, and without qualling in the presence of earthly power.

Gentlemen, I must bring these idesultry remarks to a close. I terminate them where perhaps I ought to have them where perhaps I ought to have begun—namely, with a few words on the present state and condition of our country and the prospects which are before her.

Unborn ages and visions of glory Unborn ages and visions of crowd upon my soul, the realization of all there, however, is in the hands and all there, however, of Almighty God! But under His Divine blessing, it will be debeingest on the character and virtues of onrecives, and of our posterity.

If classical history has been found to be, is now, and shall continue to be, the concomitant of free institutions, and of popular elequence, what a field is openhobitum endaguere, wutter nem is oben. Thucydales, (only may his theme not be a Peloponnesian war,) and another Livy! and let me say, gentlemen, that if we and our posterity, shall be true to the Christian religion, if we and they shall live always in the fear of God, and shall respect his commandments; if we and they shall maintain just, moral sentiments, and such conscientious convic of July as shall control the heart and life, we may have the highest hopes of the future fortunes of our country; and if we maintain those institutions of government and that political union, government and prince as much as it ex-exceeds all lormer examples of political associations, we may be sure of one thing, that while our country furnishes materials for a thousand masters of the materials for a modeling to topic for a historic art, it will afford no topic for a Gibbon. It will have no "Decline and Gibbon. It will go on prospering and to prosper.

But if we and our posterity reject religious instruction and authority, violate ligious matruction and authority, violate the rules of elernal justice, triflo with the injunctious of reorality, and reck-lessly destroy the political constitution which holds us together, no man can tell how suddenly a catastrophe may over-them us, that shall bury all our glory in professed obscurity. If that catasin profound obsentity. If that catas-trophe shall happen, let it have no history! Let the horrible nurrative never be written, let its fule be like that of the let books of Livy, which as hummy eye shall eyer read; or the missing Picial of which no man can ever know more than that it is lost, and lost forever.
